Eparchy of Saskatoon Family and Life Office Bulletin: June 2015

"The future of the world passes through the family" Familiaris Consortio, 79

With many summer weddings on the horizon it is a great time to reflect on the Church's teaching on marriage. In particular it is a wonderful time to revisit what the Church teaches about family planning and why it is key to experiencing the 'joy of the gospel' in marriage. (Part I of a three part series on Marriage.)

Top 10 reasons to consider Natural Family Planning (NFP):

1. It is 'natural'; therefore, like healthy foods or exercise it complements a healthful and ecologically conscious lifestyle.
2. It is effective and reliable. All methods of family planning, with the exception of total abstinence, have a percentage of unplanned pregnancies—modern scientific NFP has about the same percentage as the birth-control pill. (This is not your Baba's NFP!!!)
3. It is respectful and promotes equality. NFP puts the responsibility for family planning on the couple as opposed to just the woman. NFP requires that both partners respect the life giving power of the other, and responsibly choose when to have children.
4. It is an intelligent response to the need to plan our family. (The Church believes children are a blessing but does not teach that couples should have as many of kids as physically possible, rather it teaches that we should have families that we can 'responsibly' parent.)
5. NFP helps us as men and women to understand and value our bodies and God given fertility. A woman's fertility is not a disease that needs to be medicated. A man's fertility is not dangerous such that there needs to be a barrier to protect a woman from it. (No, NFP does not protect against sexually transmitted disease but lifelong committed faithful monogamy is one of the best protections in that regard.)
6. It is inexpensive—requiring the one time cost of initial teaching, which varies depending on the method, and the minimal ongoing cost of charting materials.
7. NFP inspires virtues of self-control and love. Yes it does require a period of abstinence during fertile times (about 1 week/cycle) if a couple wishes to avoid a pregnancy but this is great practice in putting your partner first in all things.
8. NFP is never toxic to new life-- in the womb or outside--and can be used throughout all the stages of human life.
9. NFP can be a useful tool in diagnosing physical disorders.
10. Using NFP builds healthy relationships. Studies have shown that NFP is not only good for our bodies but it actually can make us happier, help our communication and enhance romance.

For details and reference materials please check out the links on the Family and Life Office Website. Please keep an open mind and heart on this issue—perhaps the God who created our bodies as men and women and the Church that proclaims His truth on earth has gotten it right after all! ☺ DPL

Want to learn NFP? Here are some methods of NFP available in Saskatchewan you may consider:

Drs. John and Evelyn Billings of Melbourne, Australia developed the Billings Ovulation Method over 50 years ago.

This method teaches a woman how to understand and interpret fertile and infertile days by daily observing, understanding and charting cervical mucus secretions only and by the softness and swelling of the vulva. To aid in the success of the method, confidential follow-up consultations with chart reviews are set up with an accredited NFP instructor. For more information contact:

NFP Saskatchewan Box 3807 Humboldt, SK S0K 2A0

Tel: 306.682.7771 Email: nfpsask@sasktel.net Websites: www.nfpsask.ca or www.woomb.org

Gilles and Rita Breault of Lachine, Quebec founded the Serena Sympto-Thermal Method, in 1955. Their goal was to provide couples with a reliable method for regulating their fertility. Over the past 60 years this modern scientific method has been developed and refined by Dr. Suzanne Parenteau, who has kept it on the cutting edge of scientific research on NFP. This method, taught by certified teacher couples, teaches a couple to identify the fertile or infertile days by daily observing and charting mucus secretions, cervical changes and Basal Body temperature reading.

Based on thorough scientific research CREIGHTON MODEL FertilityCare™ System (CrMS) and the new women's health science of NaProTECHNOLOGY a woman can know her cycles and use this information for the maintenance of her health, and couples can use this knowledge to plan their family and build their future as a couple!

- ◆ T.S. Elliot
- ◆ St. John Chrysostom
- ◆ Pope Francis
- ◆ St. John Paul II
- ◆ Bl. Paul VI
